

Emerging Scholars Award 2012

Applications close: Monday 27 August 2012

www.globalwaterforum.org

We invite you to participate in the Global Water Forum Emerging Scholars Award. This award is an opportunity for early-career scholars and practitioners working in water-related fields to publish a brief article that presents their research, projects, or opinions to a global audience. Participants are required to:

- submit an 800-1000 word article relevant to one of three themes: “Water Security”, “Water Economics”, “Transboundary Water Governance”
- be a PhD recipient or PhD candidate under the age of 35.

Further details regarding submissions can be found on the Global Water Forum here.

First prize is US$500; second prize is US$300; and third prize is US$200.

The top 10 finalists will be offered the opportunity to publish on the Global Water Forum site and in the GWF Discussion Paper Series during September/October 2012.

The Emerging Scholars Award will be judged by leading water researchers from the Australian National University: Professor Quentin Grafton, Dr Jamie Pittock, and Dr Daniel Connell.

Applications open Friday 6 July and close Monday 27 August at midnight (GMT).

Please direct submissions and enquiries to: emergingscholars@globalwaterforum.org

The Global Water Forum is an online resource operating under the UNESCO Chair in Water Economics and Transboundary Water Governance at the Australian National University. GWF publishes open-access articles by leading researchers and practitioners concerning local, regional, and global water challenges.

We hope you take advantage of this opportunity to promote your research and activities.

Many thanks and best wishes,

The GWF Editorial Team
